Dear Implementation Unit Participant,

Washington apple production is in a period of transition due to regulatory actions. The Pest Management Transition Project (PMTP) was funded by the State Legislature, Washington State Department of Agriculture, and the Washington Tree Fruit Research Commission, to help the apple industry transition to new pest management tools. You volunteered to participate in one of fourteen Implementation Units that met from 2008-2010.

I am asking you to help assess the impact of the PMPT by going to the web site identified below and completing a survey. The survey is short (20 questions) and will only take a few minutes to complete. The information you provide is important to completing the objectives of the project. All collected information goes into a pool of responses keeping it completely anonymous. The only thing we will know is if you clicked on the survey link in this email. Those not using the link may receive a reminder email in two weeks.

Your participation in this survey is completely voluntary. Our mailing list is confidential and will not be provided to any state, national, or other organization. Your individual responses will be anonymous and all published results will be based on combined data from all survey respondents.

If you have any questions about the project or the survey please contact Wendy Jones at 509-663-8181 ext. 260 or email us at pmtp.info@wsu.edu.

Sincerely,

Jay F. Brunner
Director, Tree Fruit Research and Extension Center, Wenatchee
